PEO Direction and Strategic Plan

- What direction is PEO moving in?
- Is it the right direction to protect the public interest?
- What does the public expect from a modern engineering regulator?

PEO needs a leader who will champion robust consultation that gathers ideas, suggestions and opportunities to elevate the engineering profession in Ontario and take action to keep engineering respected and trusted. This is how we achieve Vision 2050.

Working together, we will provide PEO clear direction by developing a solid strategic plan (2025 to 2027) that puts PEO on a path to relevancy, incorporating the input from the robust consultation.

Licensing and Emerging Disciplines

There needs to be a simple and efficient path to licensure for each graduate from a Canadian accredited engineering program and for foreign trained who meet the same standard. The current process is just not good enough or fast enough.

“The path needs to accommodate new engineering fields and be flexible in how applicants show their competency. PEO can best protect the public with an engineering workforce that has the ethics and professionalism rigour of a licensed professional.”
